New accountability targets

A new accountability system for Texas school districts was implemented last summer in an effort to improve student achievement in the state's core subjects. In August, districts received ratings of Met Standard, Met Alternative Standard or Improvement Required based on student State of Texas Assessments of Academic Readiness and end-of-course exam results from the 2013–14 school year.

Students began taking STAAR and end-of-course exams in 2012, but during the 2013 legislative session lawmakers reduced the number of end-of-course exams from 15 to five. High school students are required to pass exams in algebra I, U.S. history, biology, English I and English II before graduating.
